CONQUERORS' LONG LIST

Panels to Commemorate Passing Armies Cut in Pass Where Mountains Approach Sea.

By the Associated Press.

JERUSALEM, September 25.—On the face of a cliff in the Lebanon hills Rameses II, King of Egypt, well over 3,000 years ago, ordered his stonecarvers to inscribe a tablet setting forth his conquest of the land. The figures of the ancient Egyptian ruler nd his men still are visible. A few feet away one may see, carved in the same rock by a British stonecutter, record of the coming, in September, 1918, of Field Marshal Sir Edmund H. H. Allenby, G. C. B., commander of the allied forces in Asia Minor. And he passage of the centuries from B. C. 1300 to A. D. 1918, is recorded v various other carvings, in all not less than twelve, and each describing the march of a victorious army.

The cliff selected for the carving of these historic records is at the mouth of the Dog river, ten miles northeast of Beirut, in Syria. This strip of country lying between the Lebanons and Egypt has been the bridge be-tween the ancient empires of the valley of the Nile and Mesopotamia, and over it have passed the armies of the ancient medieval and modern

The narrowest point is where the Lebanon mountains come close to the sea, and at this place Rameses II set the precedent of commemorating his conquests by hewing out a panel on the face of the cliff. His example has been followed by others through the centuries, until now there are a dozen of them. They are all cut about four or five inches deep, from five to nine feet high and from two to four and a half feet in width. The storms of more than 3,000 years have beaten upon some of them, but still the figures of the ancient Egyptian conqueres of the ancient Egyptian conquer ures of the ancient Egyptian conquer-ors are easily discernible as they stand with their right arms uplifted in an attitude of victory. MUSKEGON, Mich., November 2.— While eleven-year-old Rosalle Shanty, known as the "swimming girl," lay near death in a farm house at Dublin, Mich., early today, Raymond E. Wilson of Grand Rapids was being held at the county jail here under heavy guard, as the man who kidnaped the child last Sunday, drove with her to the jack-pine swamps of Manistee county and there abandoned

Wilson confessed, the sheriff's of fice reported, that he abducted the child. A formal charge of kidnaping was lodged against him and officers announced he would be ar-rainged on that count unless developments in the girl's condition war-ranted a change.

Asked to Take Drive.

In his statement to the authorities Wilson was quoted as saying he enticed the child into his automobile as she was leaving a church here Sunday, drove her about the city for a time, then started for Dublin. Near that town, the reported statement said Rosalie became alarmed and asked to be let out of the car. Wilson said he be let out of the car. Wilson said he left her near a farmhouse, and then returned to Grand Rapids. The prisoner said he was intoxicated when he took the girl into his machine, and was unable to explain his action.

Feeling ran high in Muskegon when it became known today that Wilson it became known today that Wilson was being held here and numerous deputy sheriffs and police reserves were called out to guard against disorders. A strong cordon was thrown around the jail, and citizens were not permitted to congregate in the streets for blocks around the building.

Mind May Be Affected. Wilson is forty-one years old, and has been married twice. Officers said he had a police record here, and had served a term in Jackson prison. Dr. Earl Fairbanks of Luther, who has attended Rosalie at Dublin, issued a statement today declaring the girl's mind may be permanently affected as a result of her experiences. He pre-dicted she would recover physically, nowever.
"I never will go anywhere again unless papa and mama are with me, the child is quoted as having said.

> Author of 34 Books and Many Other Writings.

Thomas Nelson Page was one of the last of the great figures of the old south. As one of the best known of latter-day Virginians, he had a varied career as lawyer, author and diplomat. He was born at Oakland on April 23, 1853. He was born and reared by aristocratic parents, the son of Maj. John and Elizabeth Burwell Nelson Page. Both his father and mother were grandchildren of Thomas Nelson, a signer of the Declaration of Independence, one of the early Governors of Virginia and commander of the Virginia forces at Yorktown.

Receives Degrees.

From the University of Virginia he received the LL. B. degree; received the Ltt. D. degree from Washington-Lee. 1887; Yale, 1901, and Harvard, 1913. He also received the LL. D. degree from Tulane University, 1899; William and Mary College, 1906, and Washington and Lee, 1907.

He practiced law in Richmond from 1875 to 1893, when he moved to Washington. He resided for a number of years at 1759 R street.

Mr. Page was appointed ambassador to Italy in June, 1913, and continued in that capacity until August, 1919, his service covering a critical grave.

CLAIMS DECREASE IN DRUG ADDICTS Abolition of Low-Caste Dance Halls One Cause.

Passing of the tawdry, low-caste, rum-soaked dance hall, where paint ed women, wine and song added their more vicious kick of narcotics to victims, and operation of the stringent new drugs act of May 26 have chiefly contributed to the decrease in drug addicts in the United States, in the view of Col. L. G. Nutt, chief of the United States narcotic section.

Col. Nutt Declares.

"The old-fashioned low-down dance hall," said Col. Nutt, "used to be one of the most dangerous places for young men and women of tender years in contracting the drug habits. Estimates Number of Addicts.

There are now probably less than million drug addicts in the United States, Col. Nutt estimated. Any estimate, however, he said, could be only more or less of a guess. New York city and the Pacific coast have been reported as danger spots on account of imports and drug peddlers, but the operation of the new narcotic drugs import and export act of May has, according to the colonel, sharply cut down the amount of habit-forming drugs entering the country and closed about those which do enter a more stringent check.

Citizens Battle Rail Detectives Over Coal Dump

By the Associated Press.
BUFFALO, N. Y., November 2.— Several hundred men, women and children of Cheektowga today battled with Lehigh Valley railroad detectives who were defending three carloads of anthracite coal, which had been mysteriously dumped near the William street city line when a freight train came to a stop. Fourteen-year-old John Disskowski was shot in the left leg when the detectives opened fire after they had been bombarded with coal thrown by persons engaged in carting off the fuel.

The detectives fired several volleys before the crowd scattered. Men and women ran in all directions, carrying buckets, baskets and tubs filled with the fuel. The three arrests were made.

Not Often Communicated.

"The terrors of the life seldom are communicated to children from addict parents, nor to brothers or sisters," he said.

"Although they get a powerful stimulant, which they enjoy and from which they cannot free themselves," continued the colonel, "they would never suggest to their sisters, for instance, the habit. "Tell my sister to become an addict" one of the poor fellows said to me; 'that's the last thing I would do. I would rather see her dead.'"

But, on the contrary, several husbands and wives have been discoveried, both addicts, evidently contracting the habit one from the other. And in the dow-caste dance halls, of which the colonel spoke with concern, there seemed to be pride in passing on the stimulation.
